THE PRESIDENT'S

This important document of His Excellency Prudente de Moraes was certainly all that could be desired except on his economic questions, as there is no doubt that he should have recommended to the Srs. Senators and Deputies that they should buy their Haberdashery on the Rua Sete de Setembro 73 (where goods are sold much lower that at the Ouvidor shops) thus demonstrating that the present Executive is prudent in about as well as in name. Possibly His Excellency has not heard of the low prices at which we are selling GOOD GOODS.

RIO DE JANEIRO, MAY 7th, 1895.

It must be confessed that the President's message has had a most disappointing and unfavorable effect. With the exception of small groups of extreme partizans, it may be said that the entire country is profoundly disappointed in its declarations, for it apparently closes the door to pacification in Rio Grande and to a restoration of peace and order in other parts of the country. The hope and confidence which had arisen from the moderate and pacificatory policy thus far pursued by the President, has suddenly given way to anxiety and depression. The war in Rio Grande will not be decided by the hostile expressions of this message. It will continue its weary devastating career, depopulating that unhappy state, destroying its wealth, engendering irreconcilable hatreds and jeopardizing its future. Once before the people of Rio Grande maintained a war against the whole empire for nearly ten years, established a republic, and practically achieved a victory — the imperial government yielding to their demands as the price of pacification. The Rio Grandenses have always been an active and independent people, and they were republicans before many of the present jacobin leaders were born. To impugn their loyalty to republican principles is absurd, and no one knows this better than the President himself. The truth is — and it should be known — there is quite as much venality as partizanship in the prosecution of this war. Fortunes have been made from the contracts springing from it, and there are still others to be made from its continuation. It matters not how many lives are lost, nor how many fortunes are wrecked, nor what the burden may be for the national treasury; it is of advantage to many to have the war continue. In our humble opinion, the President has made a serious mistake in declaring for war, and the future will prove it to him. As for his financial utterances, there is nothing sufficiently definite for a conclusion. We must therefore wait for the publication of the Ir must be confessed that the President's message has had a most disappointing and unfavorable effect. With the exception nture will prove it to him. As for his financial utterances, there is nothing sufficiently definite for a conclusion. We must therefore wait for the publication of the financial report. We are inclined to think that the President has taken too hopeful a view of the situation. The burdens of taxation are heavy, and are daily becoming heavier. And we can not see that the productive resources of the country are keeping pace with liabilities and expenditures of the government.

Although the past sessions of the present Congress do not contribute very largely to our hopes for the session which has just opened, still we may be permitted to hope that something in the line of remedial legislation will speedily be enacted. It is not the political situation alone which demands attention, the formula statistics. demands attention; the financial and indemands attention; the financial and industrial condition of the country is equally unfavorable and in need of relief. The Rio Grande conflict is an evil that can not be too soon ended, for it is leading the whole country into factional animosities and disputes which seriously endanger the peace and union of the states. So too with the financial complications which peace and union of the states. So too with the financial complications which have arisen, for they are as full of contention and disunion as is the political struggle now raging in Rio Grande. To secure the future against armed conflict, which is the popular remedy in Latin-America for every abuse, it should be the aim of the legislator to at once remove every cause which may contribute to their existence. In the first place the powers of the courts must be extended and their permanency must be assured, so that the people may be encouraged to resort to legal process to redress their wrongs, rather than to revolutionary outbreaks. And to better insure their rights and to encourage them to defend these rights by judicial means, every public official, from a policeman up to the President himself, should be made responsible before the courts for his official acts. This should be made an easy remedy against every abuse of authority, and even against oppression and unconstitutional legislation. Congress should also seek to establish some uniform and just system of taxation, so that its burdens shall not rest so heavily on the poor, as at present, and so that its enforcement shall not be an obstacle to industry and commerce, as so frequently happens. The government can have no legitimate interest antagonistic to those of its people, and it is therefore under every obligation to consult their well-being in all its acts. Taxation is the contribution so the conference where relations in the resistance. In the resistance is the relationship of the relationship of the relationship of the people may be considered and flath permanency must be a sense, to the the people may be considered and the people may be consi

The two governments, mutually adopting the measures that are just and proper, will be able, as has biliter been the case, to avoid all risk of a misunderstanding.

I am causing to be carefully examined, for the purpose of arriving at a decision consistent with the principles of international law, a large number of claims supported by diplometic action. In many of these claims the rules on the subject which are generally accepted in theory and practice are perfectly clear and indisputable; but the respective facts are not always well established or duly characterized, and it is consequently difficult to arrive at a settlement without a compromise or mutual concessions. For obtaining the proper solution I see no necessity for resorting to extraordinary legislation, since the means provided in our municipal law are perfectly adequate. The good intentions of the government and its sincere desire to avoid offending the rights of the claimants have contributed to render less irritating the delay in the settlement of these claims, to which it attaches the utmost importance.

The adoption of sanitary measures for the purpose of preventing the importance of preventing the importance of which the government has angibt to correspond by conclining, as far as possible, the demands of public health with the interess of international trade. With this object it has shown itself duly impressed with the importance of those interests and has thus succeeded, to a great extent, in reassuring them.

When Brazil has found it necessary to provide against the invasion of contagious or infectious diseases, surpossed to be prevalent in foreign affairs. The important conclusions deduced from these summary statements are sufficient to render advisable the transfer of the part of this service under the jurisdiction of the federal government to the department of justice and interior, obliging it to correspond drecely with our diplomatic and consular agents in Europe and America and to examine and settle repeated chaims which are chiefly brou desertion to privates and non-commissioned officers of the army, the navy, the national guard and the Rio de Janeiro police, provided they presented themselves within 60 days to the authorities mentioned in the respective decree.

The revolution is considerally weakened and has no farces at its disposal that are able to cope with the legal troops and consequently it can keep up only a guerilla warfare with bands that cross the boundary when pursued by our forces.

In spite of repeated complaints and the good intentions displayed by the neighboring governments, many of the frontier authorities of the republic of Uruguay cominue in some instances to obserte the presence of the Brazilian revolutionists in territory under their jarksidiction, and in other instances to give them protection, which facilitates the accumulation of elements for repeated incursions into Rio Grande.

The termination of this intesting structure and the second control of the protection of the protection of the second control of the protection of the pr 2038047, amount or revenue concerns as year but not yet entered in those books.

The expenditure for the same year was fixed at 250,457,0988652. Deficiency and special appropriations having been made to the amount of 120,717,2108230, the total is 371.175,2088802, which is reduced to 342,975,2088832 by the deduction of the sum of 28,00,000$, which will be expended only in the present and the following year.

tion of the sum of 28,200,0005, which will be expended only in the present and the following year.

The revenue collected in 1894, therefore, exceeds the estimate by at least 45,365,3728394, to which must be added the net amount of deposits, which is 7,705,9328470.

By comparing the revenue, amounting, as has been shown, to 278,887,2638847, with the expenditure, amounting to 342,975,208882, there results a deficit for the year 1894, of 64,087,9458-855, reduced by the net amount of deposits to 56,382,013856.

In view of exturns received for the 1st quarrename to the amount of 52,032,43$10 was collected, the revenue for the whole year may be estimated at 277,076,6558205, which will be increased to 294,537,8488533 by the addition of 17,511,1038328, amount calculated for the additional half year.

The nation's financial strength has recently been severely tested and the habilities which it has incurred are certainly very heavy. But there are no difficulties that may not be overcome by an economical and strietly lawabiding administration, aided by the patriotism of legislators.

The growth of the public revenue, as you have abiting administration, aided by the patriotism of legislators.

The growth of the public revenue, as you have seen, is remarkable. It for the present year we cannot count on crops larger than those of last year, everything indicates that in the coming year they will be abundant.

Consequently, if we succeed in establishing order in our administrative affairs, in regulating the various branches of the public service, in stimulating the sources of revenue, in supervising its employment and in reducing as much as possible the public expenditure, the financial situation will improve and confidence in our credit will be definitely restored.

You may count on me for farnishing you all oennitely restored.

You may count on me for farnishing you all the information you require in the performance of your arduous task and on my hearty co-operation in everything relating to the prosperity and aggrandisement of the republic.

QUARANTINE AT ILHA GRANDE. Rio de Janeiro, 30th April, 1895.

To the Editor:

Sir,—It may interest you to know the manner in which those passengers who are unlacky cought to have to pass quarantine at the so-called "sanitary station" of Ilha Grande, are treated while there. We, some 80 of the passengers brought from Buenos Aires and Montevideo by the R. M. S. Dannbe, were dumped off at the island at about 9 a.m. on April 11, went up to the quarters, which to the eye appeared pretty clean and decent, and were immediately locked in: At 11 o'clock we were served breakfast of carne secea and some other abominations hardly fit to eat, and then had to pass the day as best we could until dinner time, when we had more carne secea and some feijāo. After dinner, to our great delight, we were allowed out for an hour, and made use of the time to get some necessary changes from our baggage, which had all been placed in store to be disinfected.

The next morning we were again let out until breakfast, and the door being locked at that time, we did not get out again until the following evening.

The excuse for this barbarity was that the naswe did not get ont again until the following evening.

The excuse for this barbarity was that the passengers of the La Phata, who had arrived some 12 hours before us, had to have their turns cut, and that if we were both allowed out at the same time we might mix and give the microbes a chance to jump from one to the other. And yet the people in charge knew that we would both leave the island at the same time and in the same vessel.

This same sort of thing continued all the time we were there. The food was very bad, the service worse, (although this was not the fault of the men themselves, as they had no experience), the same men who made a pretence of cleaning the bedrooms waiting on the table and with unwashed hands?

same men who made a pretence of cleaning the bedrooms waiting on the table and with unsweaked hands?

The beds were full of various kinds of live stock; the bedroom utensils looked as if they had never been cleaned; the closets were in an indescribable state of filth, and the baths in such a condition that it was preferable to remain sticky and dirty rather than use them. The only alteriation of our enforced purgatory was when we were allowed out, and could wander around for a short time. The island is certainly a lovely place, but it is horribly defiled by the people living there. The water supply, which is abundant and excellent, is taken from a stream that comes down the mountain side. Below the reservoir this stream forms a splendid natural bath about 8 feet deep, and in one part the water comes over a rock and makes a first rate douche, although the water is rather much. It was to this place that some of us rushed whenever the caprice of the man in charge allowed us outside of our prison. All the rocks about here are covered with the names of people who have suffered quarantine at the island. Prominent among them are the names of the vessels and officers of the "republican squadron" of Admiral Gongalves. This pecular form of vandalism is not confined to the wandering Smiths and Browns of British bloot.

During the entire time we were on the island no dector or other responsible person entered the quarters to see that things were properly clean, or if anyone was ill, or for any other purpose whatever. In fact, for two days there was no doctor on the island at all—he had gone to Kio—and we were at the tender mercy of the servants of the Brazilian government.

Anyone being ill might very easily die there, surrounded by the filth of badly-drained quarters, not to speak of the bad food and want of proper attendants.

As regards the disinfection—all our clean clothes were funigated with some vile smelling aboutination, while the clothes we were wearing and all soiled linen were not touched in any way. If any germs existed at all surely they would be in our soiled linen, and not in that which had been washed and starched for many days.

When we leeft the island we were all packed on board a small steamer which took 4½ hours to go to Sepetiba, where it could not get nearer than one-fourth of a mile from the shore. Canoes were need to land us, and as a heavy sea was running, it was anything but pleasant getting ashore, especially as most of the passengers were women and children.

You correspondent bears the marks of some 20 cuts on his feet, caused by the shells on the shore, he and some others having had to wade ashore with bare feet carrying women and baggage.

All the passengers of the La Plata were sent along with us.

From Sepetiba we went in bonds, and after being derailed dozens of times, reached the matadour at 2 p.m., and found a train ready to start for São Diogo station. The baggage bond had gone on to Santa Cruz station, and we were told that the train would stop there long enough to pick it up. Acting on this information, your correspondent and several others immediately the train reached Santa Cruz got out to get our baggage, but before we could cross the station shed, and without the least warning, the train was off, leaving us and every bit of baggage behind. Those passengers who did not get out had to come back—many did—or send for their baggage. This piece of business meant a delay of three hours, and the writer and his companions only reached São Diogo at 8 p.m., where we had a delay of hall an hour more before we fuilly got our traps, and could say good-bye, for a time at least, to the great and hadly administered Central railway of Brazil. Except for a small cup of coffee in the early morning, the whole body of passengers were unable to get anything to eat from 4 p.m. of the 16th until 9 or 10 p.m. of the st hotel in Rio. We had also to pay 4$000 for the disinfection o

We had also by appropriate the distinction of our baggage.

The writer trists that you will find this account of some interest, and if by the publication of any part of it, people who make voyages to South America, may be induced to think twice, and avoid the inevitable mortification of quarantine, he will feel that his labor has not been entirely in vain.

Since the loss of Sampalo's false teeth when he precipitately retired from the battle field, the most amusing circumstance in connection with the war in Rio Grande is the result of the demand for the internation of Suldanha da Gama. In answer to this demand the Uruguayan government is stated to have informed the Brazilian legation at Montevideo that for over a mouth Suldanha da Gama has been in Brazilian territory, where he has been quietly engaged in organising his troops at a point 200 miles from the Uruguayan boundary.

A telegram received from Montevideo on the ret inst, confirms the news previously received of fighting on the road between Livramento and Quarahy. The information received up to that date was not very explicit, but the telegrams concurred in stating that the result was favorable to the federalists, and one of them reported that part of the force which some days before had set out from Livramento with the supposed intention of unting with Gen. Hyppolits had returned to that place, where several carts loaded with wounded had also arrived.

A Porto Alegre telegram of the same date an-north of Porto Alegre.

There has been published at Montevideo a letter, captured by the federalists, from ex-minister Victorino Monteiro to a colonel whose name is not stated. In this letter the ex-minister refers to what he calls the criminal attitude of the Uraguayan authorities who, he says, are openly favorable to the revolutionists. He complains bitterly of the annoyances to which he has been subjected in a position which, he declares, he should never have accepted, annoyances which he attributes to the perfuly and disloyalty of an almost irresponsible government which fails to comprehend the difficulties caused by its conduct.

COFFEE NOTES

—Coffee thefts have continued at the warehouses of the Ducas Nacionaes. Some days ago, at the request of the manager, Dr. Barros Barreto, 2nd assistant delegate of the chief of police, called at those warehouses with a police force, but succeeded in arresting only one of the thieves.

—The merchants of Curityba protest against the new schedule of freight rates on the railway in Paraná. Rates to Antonina by this schedule are in some instances $1% higher than by the former schedule, and the merchants complain that the new schedule discriminates against Antonina in favor of Paranaguá. They say that with the present rates herva matte of Paraná cannot compete with that of Rio Grande, Santa Catharina, Matto Grosso and Paraguay.

-The track of the Bahia Central railway has been considerably damaged by heavy rains. At one of the points where the rails had been swept away and a deep cavity formed by the action of the waters, a train with passengers was saved from destruction by a man of the name of Hygino José Guena, who at the risk of his life stood on the track to warn the engine-driver. A sum of money collected among the grateful passengers was offered to Hygino, who, however, refused to accept it.

to Hygino; who, however, refused to accept it.

—There is probably more than mere constitutional apathy and dilatoriness at the bottom of the delay of the Brazilian government in permitting the Bahia and San Francisco and other railways to raise their rates in proportion to the depreciation of the milreis. At the meeting of the Bahia and San Francisco company yesterday, Lord Stratheden and Campbell expressed the view that it was the unbusiness-like character of the government that kept back the reform; but such delays are susceptible of another explanation. To raise rates is never popular, even when the alteration is just in every sense; and we fear that the Brazilian government does not actually desire to give the railway companies this tardy measure of justice. — Financial News, April 6.

—The Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company have quarrelled about their rates. The details are of little interest; suffice it to say that Mr. Justice Romer held that the Brazilian Submarine Company had, under the existing agreement with the other company, no power to reduce its rates; and therefore the rates must stand. But it strikes me, as it strikes a good many other people who have to use the South American cables often, that if there existed some power which would, by competition or otherwise, compel the companies themselves no worse. A number of South America would be the better for it, and the companies themselves no worse. A number of South America would be the better for it, and the companies themselves no worse. A number of South Africa, owing to the charges for the existing accommodation. The same enterprise among South American frims might work wonders with the cable tarifi. — London correspondence of Review, Buenos Aires.

This great increase in receipts is largely due to the new port improvements, which facilitate the better discharge of vessels. It is also due to the currounstance that the first months of fast year were unfavorably influenced by the civil war then raging.

ALL THE INHABITANTS OF THE UNITED STATES OF BRAZIL AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES CAN NOW VERY EASILY OBTAIN 17.

To all places where a postal-agency exists, the salutary NECTANDRA AMARA PILLS, which contain the exact doses of Nectandra, well packed in small and resistant tin boxes, can be forwarded with the greatest dispatch and thus serve instead of Wine, Elisir, or Tincture of Nectandra Amara, the Paulista remedy, as the latter, on account of being liquid, can not be sent by mail. The effect produced by the Nectandra Amara pills is exactly the same.

Here are some of the innumerable testimonials with regard to this wonderful medicine:

From a mother.

Mr. Joaquim Bueno de Miranda.—Having been very ill, suffering from a dyspeptic complaint, I came very near dying and leaving my five children as orphans; my good luck, however, would that I read one of your Nectandra Amara pills advertisements in the journal O Pais; I bought some and the result was very prompt; after a few days I was completely re-established. I write you this letter purposely, so that you can make any use of it you desire. Yours gratefully Anna EMILIA DE SOUZA MACHADO. Rio de Janeiro, 12th June 1894.

From a father.

The undersigned certifies herewith that his daughter suffered for a long time from an intestinal complaint, and after having been treated by very capable physicians without result, was completely re-established by the use of the Nectandra Amara pills. Rio de Janeiro, 18th September 1890. Antonio A. C. Barradas, Doctor in Sciences.

From a sufferer.

I, the undersigned, declare herewith, that having suffered a long time from dysentery, and having used your Nectandra Amara pills by the advice of a good friend, find myself happily re-established; one single box was sufficient to effect my cure. 241, Rua do Hospicio, Rio de Janeiro, 22nd April 1894. J. Do Pazo.

From a doctor.

I certify herewith that I have frequently employed in my practice the Pills, Elixir and Tincture of Nectandra Amara with admirable results in cases of diarrhea, dysentery and inflammation of the bowels. Which I affirm and swear upon the faith of my professional reputation. Capivary, 14th March 1890. Dr. José Vielka Da Costa Valente.

A business man from the interior writes us as follows: State of Minas Geraes, S. João Baptista da Terra Branca, 15th May 1891. Having obtained a very good result by the use of the box of Sr. Antero Leivas' Nectandra Amara pills, which you sent me by mail, I now enclose herewith 48700 and beg you will forward to my address two more boxes of your precious medicine for the cure of dyspeptic complaints. With many regards, yours, etc., Antonio Theophilo 1008 Reis.

From a planter of the interior.

S. José do Bom Jardim, 8th February 1894.

Sr. Joaquim Bueno de Miranda — Enclosed find the sum of 48600 for which please send me by registered mail two more boxes of Nectandra Amara pills; the result obtained by our patient with the last box received has been highly satisfactory. Yours etc., MANOEL TEIXEIRA DE PAIVA ARAUJO.

THE ABOVE transcribed letters and testimonials show the great efficacy of the Nectandra Amara pills in cases of complaints of the stomach or disarrangement of the bowels and the great facility to obtain them wherever a postal agency exists. It is a remedy with which every family, father, or chief of establishment in distant parts of the country, where no prompt medical assistance can be obtained, should be provided, because this remedy is just for those complaints which occur most frequently, and from which, when neglected, ensue very often fatal consequences. N. B. — In cases of impoverishment of the blood, weakness in the legs, swollen feet on getting up, convalescence after serious iliness, the pills should be ground and diluted in a small glass of superior Port wine, and taken on rising from bed and at the meals.

For sea-sickness, three pills should be taken the evening before going on board. In case of sea-sickness on board, the pills should be ground and diluted in a small glass of water or good Port wine and taken until the disposition to womit has passed. For children, half the dose is sufficient.

All persons, who have no correspondents here and desire to provide themselves with t most useful pills, should write direct to the proprietor who will remit them by registered to any part of Brazil or foreign country, by enclosing with the order the amount of Rs. 2: for one box, 12$600 for 6 boxes and 20$800 for one dozen boxes; the fractions represent the ampaid to the Post Office for registering.
